Applying for Aid

Graduate U.S. students are eligible for federal and private loans and student employment under the Federal Work-Study Program. Keep in mind that the total of all your funding including scholarships, fellowships, research assistantships, teaching assistantships, student loans and Federal Work-Study may not exceed the price of attending MIT.

Recommended application deadlines:

- June 1 to receive an anticipated financial aid credit as of your fall bill
- November 1 to receive an anticipated financial aid credit as of your spring bill
- May 1 to receive an anticipated financial credit as of your summer bill

Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA)

The U.S. government determines the amount of federal student aid, including loans, and work-study. MIT disburses these funds to your student account.

Designate MIT as one of your recipients using Federal Code 002176.

Fill out and submit on FASFA website

- The FAFSA is filled out for all federal aid, this includes loans and student employment.
- You must fill out a FAFSA each year with your newest tax information.
- You need your 2014 federal income tax returns, W-2s, other records of money earned, bank statements and records of investments, and records of untaxed income.
- The form becomes available each year on January 1st and it is recommended that you complete it by the April 15th deadline.

Graduate Loan Application

If you have special circumstances or unusual expenses, or any other information that will help us understand your financial situation more completely, please include that information in the last section of the MIT Graduate Loan Application.
